His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Elliott, was visiting in the county and accompanied him to her home at Portland. He has a son, Henry Elliott, at Los Angeles.

A new way of preaching the gospel came to light the other day in Bedford. In front of the Presbyterian Church there has been placed a case containing a line or two of Scripture. This Scripture message is printed in heavy black type and, if your eyes are very good, it can be read from the monument. The idea is to have the church preach the gospel all the time. It strikes us the idea is a good one.

AN IMPORTANT MOVEMENT

The Juniata Valley Children's Aid Society Will Organize.

For twenty-eight years there has been carried on at Huntingdon through the agency of the Home for Orphan and Friendless Children, a work of value to the whole Juniata Valley. The purpose of this Home has been to care for the most helpless and helpless children in several counties. This work has been conducted by a few earnest people, some of whom have served continuously from the beginning. The managers are elected by the churches of the town, giving it an unsectarian character.

In these years over four hundred children were received, and it is safe to say that twice as many more came up for consideration and were either helped to ways of self-respect or declined from lack of means. Over two hundred and fifty were placed in families and many were replaced; all had to be visited from time to time and an extensive correspondence kept up. This has meant an amount of labor which is not easy to estimate and an amount of personal concern which may only be imagined. While the Home has been well sustained by private contributions, there has been the lack of a definite constituency in its support.

Owing to the fact that a movement is well under way to provide an endowment fund of $25,000 for supervision, this institution has attracted wide attention. Many people who knew little of the work are at present indicating interest and the Home finds itself in a position to do more than a local service.

It is now proposed to organize an association which shall be known as The Juniata Valley Children's Aid Society, based on a membership of one dollar a year. This society shall cover the counties of Huntingdon, Bedford and Mifflin and possibly include other smaller counties. At the same time it will be able to affiliate with the Pennsylvania Children's Aid Society of Philadelphia, the leading society of the state and other smaller organizations.

The Home at Huntingdon will be the central receiving station for the district and continue under the present management. To simplify the whole system the managers of the Home will serve as managers of the Aid Society, with additional members from each of the counties represented in the association. The president of the Home will be the president of the Aid Society, and other officers will be selected as found most convenient.

Without any change whatever in the present operations of the Home it is possible to greatly enlarge its field of usefulness. No one need decline to accept membership in this society because of inability to contribute in large amount, and the payment of a nominal membership fee will not prohibit the contribution of larger sums to the general fund.

So important and needful a work as the care of the most unfortunate children of a community should not be left to a few people, however willing or competent they may be. Those who work need the pledge of a large personal interest. It takes the wisest judgment of the best people of every community to solve the problems which arise affecting the welfare of the children who are to be the future citizens of the state.

D. Emmert of Huntingdon has been authorized to represent the Board of Managers of the Home in the development of the enlarged plan. A certificate of membership, signed by the treasurer, will be issued to every associate of the Aid Society and a receipt will be sent to every contributor to the Home.

In carrying forward this larger idea the Home is in urgent need of funds. Send contributions to J. R. Simpson, Treasurer. It is to be hoped that many will become annual members of the Aid Society at $1.00 per year. Life memberships will be issued at $25.00, payable in five yearly installments.

Work on New Railroad

A force of eighteen linemen last week began the construction of a telephone line along the Bedford and Hollidaysburg Railroad, beginning at Brook's Mills. The force constructing the line at this end are as far north as Claysburg. When the line is connected communication will be established between Cumberland and Altoona about March 1.

The iron horse made its first visit to the staid old town of Claysburg Friday. A work train and a pay train were run over the new line of the Bedford and Hollidaysburg Railroad, which is now completed to that town. The pay train was run from Cumberland and the workmen scattered along the line were made happy by receiving their monthly pay. These two trains were the first to be run over the new road.

THE THANKSGIVING BASKET

BOB placed the big basket between his feet on the floor and looked out of the window of the train.

In Bob's basket was a big Thanksgiving turkey, a surprise for the folks at home. There was no turkey in the basket which a man who sat next to Bob placed on the floor between his feet. What was in it Bob discovered when he undertook to surprise the folks at home. He surprised them all right enough, but he surprised himself also, for he found that he and the man had somehow changed baskets and that instead of a turkey he had brought home a bottle attached to a fine boy baby.

Dire was Bob's disappointment, for the turkey his mother in his absence had provided was far inferior to the one he had unwittingly exchanged for the baby.

Bob's mother took the baby to her arms and her heart, and to her credit she said, she did so before she ascertained that the clothing and ornaments of the little stranger indicated that it was a baby of distinction.

"One of the Four Hundred," she said to her husband. "No doubt the four hundred and first," he laughed, in spite of having just lost his job.

Next morning, however, Thanksgiving morning—his face wore a different expression. Grave determination shone from his eyes.

"I must be off at once," he said to his wife, "to look for another job."

"On a holiday?" she exclaimed. "The sooner the better," said he, and he scarcely more than skimmed his newspaper except the columns of "Help Wanted—Males."

"Nothing there," he observed, with a sigh. "Never mind, mother; there's something somewhere, and I'll find it." Scarcely had he gone when Bob picked up the paper and in a moment more gave a shout.

"There! You've waked the new baby," said his mother, hurrying to the rescue.

"Listen to this! It's the very baby, I do believe."

It was a short dispatch from Mayville, sent out late the previous night, to the effect that Mr. Ray's son and heir was missing with his nurse, and great fears were entertained that the child had been stolen and was being held for ransom.

Then came a knock on the hall door which checked Bob in a war dance. He opened it and was almost brushed down by the man of the railway cars, who was standing there with a big basket on his arm and who dashed into the room like a wild man.

"Here's your wretched turkey!" he cried. "Oh, you're the boy who changed baskets with me, are you? Lucky your address was on that basket. And here's the infant, the beloved baby. If you've not treated it well I'll prosecute you for kidnapping!"

"I say," cried Bob, at last finding his wits, "leave that basket and the baby too! I know all about you. It's you that's the kidnaper! Help! Police! Po-o-l-a-ugh-gr-r!"

He hardly got out one yell before the man was upon him with a furious bound, almost choking the breath out of him.

"Do that again," he growled, "and I'll kill you!" And he threw the boy into a corner and darted out of the house with the baby, locking the door from the outside.

Bob picked himself up from the floor and tried the door. It yielded nothing. Then he got a chair and pulled himself up to the transom. In a second he was through it, hatless, dusty, choked and panting, but thirsting for revenge. Down the stairs he leaped, three at a time.

Up the street, unmindful of other boys, he darted. Half a block down the avenue he saw a street car plunging along, and on the rear platform stood the kidnaper with the wrapped up baby in his arms. Bob had not a cent for car fare, but he dashed after the car as if he owned the street.

The car gained on him in spite of all effort, but the man did not seem to have observed him. At last it shot out of sight, but Bob did not falter. He was not far from the ferry, where the car stopped.

The boy got there, almost exhausted, but determined still. A ferryboat was just going out. Regardless of a big policeman and a ticket seller, he darted past them on to the pier and down

ADVICE TO WOMEN

A Message From a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the wearing of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store.—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

planks like a bullet, with the policeman behind him on an elephantine charge, and caught the boat just as it was beginning to move from the slip.

Now, who should be on the boat but Mr. Ray himself, just going home after a hurried visit to police headquarters. Bob's desperate spring for the deck had made him an object of general attention, and his cry of "That man's a kidnaper!" diverted it to the man with the baby in his arms.

Seeing himself detected, the man, still holding the child, sprang from the rear of the boat into the water. Bob unhesitatingly sprang after him. On the deck everything was in confusion on the instant, and Mr. Ray's voice in tones of strong emotion, dominating the babel, had such an effect that the wheels were stopped, the baby and Bob rescued and the kidnaper hauled on board the police boat, which appeared among a crowd of others. Bob is now one of Mr. Ray's most trusted and best paid salesmen, and the whole family have an indefinite prospect of turkey dinners on every Thanksgiving day to come.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

SOUR STOMACH

Is An Almost Certain Sign of Acute Indigestion.

If you occasionally have a taste of sour food in your mouth, it surely shows that the food you are eating is not being digested, but instead, is fermenting and giving out poisonous gases.

Belching of gas is a common symptom at such times, and also that lump of lead feeling, as if your stomach was carrying a much greater load than it could stand.

If you want prompt relief and permanent cure, go to F. W. Jordan and get a large tin box of Mi-o-na tablets for 50 cents.

F. W. Jordan knows that Mi-o-na is a highly recommended scientific remedy, and that is why he is ready to return your money if it fails to cure acid stomach, belching of gas, dizziness, biliousness, sick headache, foul breath, and all stomach troubles.

A "TURKEY DRUNK."

An Old Time Thanksgiving Custom Which Is Happily Now Obsolete.

"I remember when I was a boy that one of the great features of Thanksgiving time was what we called the 'turkey drunk.' " says a native of western New York. "Folks didn't seem to kill their Thanksgiving turkey in those days until the forenoon of the day it was to be eaten, and it was the custom to get the bird most gloriously drunk and kill it while it was in that condition. They used to say that it made the turkey's last moments on earth happy and made its approaching death a matter of unconcern to the bird. More than that, it was believed that the brandy they filled the turkey up with gave the meat a flavor that no bird that died sober could ever have. I don't know whether that was so, but I do know that I can't get any turkey nowadays that has the peculiar delicious flavor those brandy soaked birds of my beloved boyhood had. The turkey drunk was a great occasion. It was witnessed by the whole family and all the invited guests, if there were any. Two hours before killing the turkey the head of the family would fill a teacup or a tin cup or sometimes a small gourd with brandy. This he would take out to the poultry yard where the turkey which was to provide the Thanksgiving dinner would be cooped up by itself in one corner and place it on the ground in front of the turkey. Those fowls appeared to be fond of brandy, and the doomed bird would gobble up the intoxicating liquor with the relish of a confirmed old toper. Sometimes a particularly large and fat turkey would drink the entire contents of the cup.

"As soon as the bird was through drinking it would be let out of its coop, and in less than three minutes it would be staggering about the yard with as elegant a jig on as any rounder ever enjoyed. If the victim was a gobbler his efforts to maintain his dignity under the influence of his load were as funny as a circus clown's. Steadying himself by an effort, he would throw his head up, thrust his chest out, lower his wings till they dragged on the ground and then try to strut among his hens with the dominating pomposity of his sober days. His strut invariably ended in his falling ignominiously on his nose, and his struggles to regain his equilibrium were equal to the drunken gymnastics of Toodles.

"The exhibition the intoxicated gobbler made of himself created unmistakable surprise, if not disgust, in his harem, and the hens would draw apart in groups and watch the antics of their lord in shocked silence. The turkey never failed to get drunker and drunker and at last would totter and fall and give up to the influence of the liquor. Then was the time to kill the bird, and its head was cut off while the turkey was in its stupor. That custom is fortunately obsolete now. I don't think it would be a very inspiring sight for one to witness nowadays, but in the old times the stiffest teetotaler didn't seem to see anything wrong in making the Thanksgiving turkey drunk. I suppose that would come under the head of cruelty to animals now. At any rate, it should."

Her Thanksgiving.

Oh, have you got the turkey picked, And is the oven hot And ready for the pumpkin pie? I'll have to bake a lot, And current cakes and ginger snaps, Of each a heaping tray. Our boys and girls are coming home To spend Thanksgiving day.

I'll make some sugar cookies too. They used to like them so When they were little toddling things. It seems so long ago! And apple tarts for daughter Jane With eyes of tender gray, She's bringing both her babies home To spend Thanksgiving day.

I rose before the peep of dawn, I had so much to do, But never have I felt so spry, Though I am sixty-two. To cook and bake and boil and brew Seems only just like play With all the dear ones coming home To spend Thanksgiving day.

I thank the Lord who gives to us The sunshine and the rain That here in one unbroken band I see them once again— Our children and their children, too, All hastening to obey The voice of love that calls them home To spend Thanksgiving day. —Minna Irving.

On the Mexican Border.

Along the southern border of Mexico the natives still prepare their Thanksgiving feast with the primitive tools of ancient times. Beans and corn are ground into meal by the laborious aboriginal method to make bread and frijoles for the Thanksgiving dinner.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity.

Can Bedford residents demand further proof than that contained in the following testimonial?

Mrs. E. E. Adams, Clarence St., Hyndman, Pa., says: "I suffered from kidney disease and lumbago, and although I used many medicines, I obtained only temporary relief. There were severe pains in my back, at times extending to my shoulders and head and I suffered from chills and dizzy spells. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a box and it required but a short use to effect a complete cure. I have been in perfect health since and am therefore glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

USEFUL TO KNOW

Put hot flannels over the seat of neuralgic pain and renew frequently. A change of shoes and stockings completely will be found as soothing as any thing for tired feet.

A bad bruise can be eased by applying turpentine. This is also excellent if one has run a nasty nail into the flesh.

If the clothes seem to have stuck to a wound do not tear them off, but soften with warm olive oil the parts that adhere, having first cut away the clothing close to the wound with sharp scissors.

For a bad sprain put first under hot water and then under cold. Keep this up until the doctor arrives. Or bandage the wound in some of the clay preparations recommended to reduce swelling and pain.

It is said that chewing pieces of cinnamon bark gives relief to sensitive teeth and gums. For the sensitiveness brought about by acid fruits cleaning the teeth with precipitated chalk and water is satisfactory. The brush must be soft.

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Tolstoy's Plea for Justice.

Justice demands that you should take from people no more than you give them. But there is a way of weighing your work and the work of others of which you avail yourself; besides, you may at any time be incapacitated for work, and you will have to make use of the work of other people. Therefore try to give more than you take so as not to be unjust.

Dyspepsia is America's curse. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia every time. It drives out impurities, tones the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

If you want the best remedy for your cold, insist upon Bees Laxative Cough Syrup. Through its laxative principle, it gently moves the bowels, and in that way drives the cold from the system. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for widowhood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures. If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised up to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And to Relieve the Lame and Aching Back, You Must First Relieve the Kidneys

There is no question about that at all—for the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way—that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: Extreme and unnatural lassitude and weariness, nervous irritability, heart irregularity, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, scalding sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages, etc.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an exceptionally meritorious remedy for any and all affections or diseased conditions of these organs. These Pills operate directly and promptly—and their beneficial results are at once felt.

They regulate, purify, and effectually heal and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver, to perfect and healthy condition—even in some of the most advanced cases.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail postpaid.

HER THANKSGIVING DINNER

YOUNG Mrs. John Vincent Harris approached the butcher's block timidly.

"How do you do, Mr. Butcher? Please wait on me. I don't know what I want exactly. I want something for a Thanksgiving dinner. No—that is, I don't think I want a turkey unless—perhaps you have one ready filled. Either chestnuts or oysters would do. You haven't? Then I think I won't take a turkey. These all look so—so difficult.

"You see, my husband—the word comes with difficulty—"has asked his family to take their first meal—I mean they are to dine with us for the first time since we went to housekeeping, so I want everything to look as if I were accustomed to it. No, I am not used to such a large family, and you must help me to calculate. There are his father, mother, the girls and a son-in-law. You see, Alice, the second daughter, was married in an autocar, but maybe you don't care for romantic marriages.

"I asked Mr. John Vincent Harris when he kissed—that is, when he left me this morning what I should buy, and he said to get—'I declare, I believe I've forgotten! Oh, yes, now I know. He spoke of a bird and a bottle.' Have you any birds in bottles? No? That's too bad. And after I had been so careful to remember too! Perhaps a duck would be nice, only ducks have such homely feet. No, I just couldn't serve a duck to his family. Why, all his sisters are so proud of their feet and wear French heels. There are five of them—sisters, I mean—and they will all be there. I almost wish I could have married a man with half as many sisters. Why, how funny! Then there'd be two and a half sisters, and that's not possible, you know.

"Of course I must not keep you waiting. I don't really mean to monopolize your time, but—Oh, dear! What shall I get? I guess you may send me a squib—that's a young dove, you know. I ate one at a restaurant once just after I was engaged. That's quite awhile ago, because we've been married ever so long. You just ought to see my presents. I've got them all spread out and—What? You don't think a squib—squab, I said—will be large enough? Well, maybe not.

"What shall I get? Let me see. Geese! Yes, you may send me three geese—not too small. Please be sure to cover their feet, and—no, you need not dress them, because I don't want to make you extra work, and you know I'd have to undress them before I baked them. And, please, Mr. Butcher, see that their eyes are closed, for I never could have the heart to put them into the oven if they were looking at me.

"Thank you. You have been so kind that I have a notion to tell you a secret. Yes, I will.

This is my first experience at a meat store. Yes, I think I've done pretty well. I am afraid I did fit just a little to you about being married a long time, because, really, you know I haven't. Why, how did you guess it? We have just got back from our trip to Niagara.

"No, I won't keep you any longer. By the way, I shall want a few pounds of gimlets—no, gimlets—for gravy, so please send them. Don't forget about closing the eyes. Thank you. Good day."

She returns hastily. "Oh, I nearly forgot to order salt pork. Mr. John Vincent Harris is so fond of it for breakfast. Please don't send any fat with it, because we are not Jack Spratt and his wife. What? No, they are not neighbors. I thought you might know them. No, they don't trade here. Now, don't forget the things I've told you. Good day."—Chicago News.

A THANKSGIVING PRAYER

CLORINDA, in the meeting house
The worthy parson prays,
And goodly thanks he gives for these
Most prosperous of days.
Your stately parents on their ways
Besought you not to stay,
But hasten with your meed of praise
On this Thanksgiving day.

Clorinda, oh, I watch you go
In flowered satin dressed;
You wear my heart upon your sleeve
That all the town may jest,
And when you kneel among the rest
Give thanks for this, I say:
You've not the grief that tears my breast
On this Thanksgiving day.

Clorinda of the rose red lips
That laugh me into scorn,
Must I alone mid happy folk
Be saddest of men born?
Ah, give me, sweet, this gracious morn
The word I needs must pray,
And grant unto a swain forlorn
A real Thanksgiving day.

Don't Use Pins
Girls, if you wish to be dainty about your fancy work, discard pins, which invariably leave an imprint in delicate fabrics, and use instead wax tipped needles. Such needles cannot be bought, but are quickly made at home by dipping the eye ends of fine needles into melted wax, thus giving them tiny heads. As an evening pastime dozens can be prepared in this way, using one color or different colors of wax if the maker likes artistic variety. The girl who once uses these dainty needles for pinning her fine work will never be willing to resort to ordinary pins.

BOB INGERSOLL ON STINGY MEN

I despise a stingy man. I don't see how it is possible for a man to die worth $5,000,000 or $10,000,000 in a city full of want, when he meets almost every day the withered hand of beggary and the white lips of famine. How a man can withstand all that and hold in the clutch of his hand $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 is past my comprehension. I do not see how he can do it. I should not think he could do it any more than he could keep a pile of lumber when hundreds and thousands were drowning in the sea. Do you know I have known men who would trust their wives with their heart and their home but not with their pocket books—not with a dollar. When I see a man of that kind, I always think he knows which is the most valuable. Think of making your wife a beggar! Think of her asking you every day for a dollar or two dollars, or to humbly beg for fifty cents. "What did you do with that dollar I gave you?" Think of having a wife afraid of you! What kind of children do you expect to have with a beggar and a coward for a mother? Oh, I tell you, if you have but a dollar in the world and you have got to spend it, spend it like a king, spend it as though it were a dry leaf and the owner of unbounded forests. That's the way to spend it. I had rather be a beggar and spend my last dollar like a king, than to be a king and spend my money like a beggar. If it's got to go, let it go. Get the best you can for your family—and look as well as you can yourself. When you used to go courting, how nice you looked! Ah, your eye was bright, your step was light, and you just put on the very best you could. Do you know that it is insufferable egotism in you to suppose that a woman is going to love you always, looking as bad as you can. Think of it! Any woman on earth will be true to you forever when you do your level best.

ABE'S THANKSGIVING PUDDING

The Tidbit That Delighted a Black Boy's Heart.
"Granny, is Thanksgiving day for us poor colored pussions as well as for de rich ladies you wash fur?"
"Why, Abe Lincoln, chile, what is you talkin' about? Hab I done brung you up to ask sich fool questions? Don't de good Lord say as how we mus' be thankful for our marcies every day?" answered the old woman, looking up from her ironing board at her small grandson, who was paring potatoes by the stove.
"But, granny, you said as we be too poor for any sort o' puddin', and ef we got cabbage an' bakin' dat's all we might 'pect, an' I do lub a puddin' mighty well." And Abe seemed ready to set up a wail of sorrow.
"It am a fearful sin to lub a puddin'! De good book says you mus' lub your enemies, boy, but it don't gib us no 'couragement to keef fur tings fur our stoonach," granny replied severely.
"I ain't got no enemies to lub 'cept dey is de boys on de nex' street dat calls me 'de bowlegged nigger kid,' an' I can't lub 'em as much as a puddin' nobow. I do so want real bad de sort Miss Gray done sent me las Kismus when I broke my leg."
"Plum puddin'! Well, you air mighty 'bitious to want dat, but you keep on with your potatoes, an' granny will see what she kin do," declared she more kindly as she stared at her crippled little grandson the last one left of her once large family. "I'll done gib Abe Lincoln a spree," she thought as with a flash of joy she called to mind a pudding of the old time.
And this is the pudding that delighted little Abe's heart on Thanksgiving and made him feel as if he, too, participated in the feasts and good things of the day:
Cut up two cups of bread fine, half a cup of chopped suet, half a cup of molasses, one egg, one cup of raisins, one cup of sweet milk in which half a teaspoonful of soda is dissolved, half a teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, a pinch of mace and salt. Boil two hours in a tin pudding boiler. Eat with foaming sauce, which is made thus. Beat half a cup of butter to a cream, add one cup of granulated sugar and stir until it is white and foaming. Just before serving pour on one cup of boiling water and stir a moment.—Christman Work.

Our Thanksgiving Pie.
Oh, pumpkin, smiling on the vine
I ween, a handsome fellow!
But listen to these words of mine
Which I'm about to tell, oh!
"All, all is vanity, I trow."
Thus truly saith the preacher,
And vanity is lurking now
In every pumpkin feature.
I grant thou hast a mellow cheek
And very fairly rounded,
But on this happy fact this week
Thy downfall will be founded.
Since thou'rt so handsome on the vine
(Which well I can't deny, oh!),
Methinks thou sure wilt look divine
In our Thanksgiving pie, oh!
—Elsie Parrish.

Monograms
The girl or woman who wishes the touch of individuality given by her monogram can easily embroider both her underwear and household linen, if at all clever, with her needle.
By selecting the initial of the first name and simply combining that with the initial of the last it is not nearly so difficult to evolve one's monogram as is generally supposed and costs nothing but the time it takes. Then use soft filling cotton to trace the letters, using a chain stitch to give a padded look, and work with fine mercerized floss that comes for the purpose; the result more than pays for the small amount of time, trouble and cost, the latter only the few cents for the working cotton.

INSURGENTS TO RENEW BATTLE

That the fight on Cannonism and Aldrichism will be renewed in both the House and the Senate upon the assembling of Congress in December seems almost certain. Senators Dolliver and Cummins, along with many other members of the Senate and the House, though defeated by the Aldrich and Cannon forces, reinforced by trust influences, are by no means ready to hold up their hands. "Party integrity is more important than party solidarity" is to be the watchword of the so-called insurgents. They will storm "the citadel of protection" which is in charge of Aldrich and Cannon.

Mr. Dolliver recently declared that the majority obtained by Mr. Aldrich was secured by a species of reciprocity of benefits. Those disposed to show signs of independence were invited into the "citadel" and promised in return for "holding their tongues" anything they might ask so long as it did not interfere with what the "special interests" enjoy. Such is the class of Senators and Representatives that make up the so-called regulars in the Republican party, while those who refused to accede to the demands of the Aldrich-Cannon gang that anything demanded by the "special interests" should be given were termed "insurgents."

Far superior in manhood and in integrity is the man who, though called an "insurgent," holds out for the fulfilling of promises made seemingly in good faith by the Republican campaigners from Taft down to honestly revise the tariff and that downward and, therefore, beneficial to the common people, than the Senator or Representative who breaks both political promises and personal pledges to accomplish his own selfish ends and joins the Aldrich-Cannon crowd because of either gigantic or paltry gain.

Dolliver insists that the issue and the one that will be fought out in the immediate future is whether the middle west Republicans will accept the leadership of Aldrich, Hale and Cannon and Payne, who made the tariff bill what it is, or will adopt the views and follow the counsels of the insurgents.

"I am altogether willing that the title of the great suit which is about to be tried before the Republicans of the country," Senator Cummins says, "from now, henceforth, until the end shall be—the insurgents against Aldrich, Cannon, Hale, Payne, et al. I do not accuse these men and their associates of bad motives. I accuse them of a false conception of their duties, responsibilities and functions of government. They have been on the wrong side of substantially every question that the growth and development of the country have made important."

"They opposed all of the reforms that made the administration of Theodore Roosevelt illustrious; and when they were driven by the overwhelming force of public opinion into a passive support of any of these measures they used all their arts and influences to render as ineffective as possible the laws that were enacted. I accuse them of giving aid and comfort to every transportation company, every monopoly, every combination that Congress ever attempts to regulate or correct."

"I do not doubt that they have been honest in their opinions; but they have been none the less dangerous and none the less enemies of every measure that has been projected to relieve the people from the tyranny, oppression and injustice of the modern money lover and money getter."

Such are the accusations against the Cannon crowd by those who have been called "insurgents" because they would not bow the knee, betray the real Republican party and break pledges made to the people to further the interests of the trusts and combines and the representatives of "special interests" in the Senate and the House—because they believe "party integrity is more important than party solidarity."

THE STANDARD OIL DECISION

However valuable in restraining illegal combinations in the business realm might be amendments to the Sherman Anti-Trust law, the recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court against the Standard Oil Company seems clearly to indicate that the law as it stands is sufficient to keep combinations in the shape of trusts within due bounds.

The following paragraph from Judge Hook's opinion is significant: "A holding company owning the stocks of other concerns whose commercial activities, if free and independent of a common control, would naturally bring them into competition with each other, is a form of trust or combination prohibited by section 1 of the Sherman Anti-Trust act. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is such a holding company."

In the decision the judges seem to recognize the commonly accepted principle that what a government should not grant because of its being injurious to the general welfare, individuals should not be permitted to secure and hold by wrongful means. In short they hold that the baneful effect is the same whether the monopolistic power comes as a governmental gift or is gotten as a result of individual wrong-doing; neither can arguments that such combinations have a tendency to reduce the prices of products because of economy in operation have weight, the Judges hold.

Many are those who join Attorney General Wickersham in the opinion that it is one of the most important decisions ever handed down in this country, and it is likely to be sustained by the United States Supreme Court.

IMPROVING CITY DELIVERY

Citizens Should Aid Carriers by Making Walks.

Two additional city delivery letter boxes were erected on Monday, one at the electric light at John Line's, on West Pitt Street, and one at the electric light on North Thomas Street. These boxes will greatly facilitate the mailing of letters by the residents of those districts, many of whom had heretofore to go quite a distance to the nearest letter box. Permission to erect these boxes was requested over a year ago but refused. The request was renewed this year and permission was given a few days ago.

As the letter boxes are nearly all on poles a few feet from the edge of the pavements, leaving an unpaved space or gutter to be crossed in order to mail letters, the citizens in the locality of the boxes can improve matters materially by making small board platforms or crossings from the pavements to the boxes; a couple pieces of boards, two cross pieces, a dozen nails, and a pair of willing hands will quickly do the work. Who will make a beginning?

Now let me add a word in behalf of the carriers. They are not really required to trudge through the mud to deliver letters, where no walks of any kind are provided. The faithful carriers deliver mail at your houses over many squares where no effort has ever been made to provide a dry walk of any kind. The time of year has come when some place must be found, by every family, to dump coal ashes and cinder. Will not the citizens of these unpaved districts join to promote their own convenience and comfort, as well as that of the carriers, by making walks, two or three feet wide and six or eight inches high, of coal ashes?

I will do all in my power to make the city delivery service efficient and satisfactory and I will make this appeal to the citizens for their aid in securing reasonably dry walks for the carriers where there are no pavements. John Lutz, P. M.

AFTER REYNOLDS' SCALP

Both Blair and Cambria Will Have Congressional Candidates.

It is now certain that Ex-State Senator J. C. Stineman of South Fork is after the scalp of Hon. John M. Reynolds, and incidentally he proposes, according to reports, to show one George M. Wertz and some associates that he is still a factor in Cambria politics.

Mr. Stineman is now in Florida but will return in a few weeks when he will enter the political arena, seeking the Republican Congressional nomination from this district.

The following letter to an Altoona friend leaves no doubt as to his intentions:

"Hotel Raleigh, Washington, D. C. "Your letter of yesterday, sent to South Fork, followed me here. I am on the way to my Florida home, where I will spend several weeks, when I will return to remain for some time.

"Relative to my candidacy for Congress, I did not intend to announce it until my return home from the south. Yes; you can say I am a candidate. I have heard it intimated that there will be other candidates, but upon request of my friends, I will make an active canvass and hope to win.

"Yours truly,
"J. C. Stineman."

But not only will Bedford and Cambria have candidates; Blair too will have a runner on the track in the person of Jesse Hartman, concerning the candidacy of whom the Johnstown Democrat in a recent issue said:

"Blair County will have a Republican Congressional candidate in the field, so it was semi-officially announced from Altoona at a late hour last night.

"Jesse Hartman, one of the best known and also one of the strongest members of the G. O. P. in that county, will be after the nomination. In fact Mr. Hartman has already informed a few of his closest friends of his intention to make the run.

"Incidentally it is known that Mr. Hartman is not one of those Blair County Republicans who want to stick a knife in the back of one Jacob C. Stineman of South Fork.

"This being the case the Hon. John M. Reynolds will have to narrow his campaign down to his own county and friends of Senator Stineman declare that they do not believe Mr. Reynolds can be successful even in his own bailiwick.

They figure that either Mr. Stineman or Mr. Hartman has more Republican friends in old Bedford than the Hon. John M.

Noah Webster says that it takes three or more persons to make a riot, so the word 'fight' or 'contest' will no longer be applicable to the situation among the Republicans in the Nineteenth Congressional district."

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Finds Elkins a Growing City—Meets Bedford People.

Elkins, W. Va., November 21, '09. I just saw by James Charleston's Gazette that James Corboy had passed away. So it shall be with each of us, and every day I think that according to the natural order of things Dad can't keep up this pace long. Bedford loses one of its best citizens in the death of Mr. Corboy. He has been known all over the land as being a man of his word. Peace be unto him.

Now for a word about this young city. Elkins was founded twenty years ago by Hon. Henry G. Davis, whose foresight and sagacity led him to build the West Virginia Central, and to have the state assist while he was buying the most valuable coal and timber land at from one to three dollars per acre. He still lives to see the greatness that has come to all this country. Nature in her wisdom did well for this vicinity. She covered the surface with the best and most valuable timber; she left the bowels of the earth filled with choice coal, oil and gas, and the residents of Elkins have grasped the opportunity and are making fortunes out of their grasps. The population of Elkins is about 9,000. Three prosperous banks with wide open doors will take in all you make and take to them for safe keeping; two large hotels accommodate the boys, but if you don't want to be put in sky parlor at the Randolph you want to engage a room in advance. This is a good, home-like hotel with good beds, a good table, all clean, and last but not least the prettiest lady waiters to be found anywhere. Three planing mills are kept busy boring out the knots and filling the holes with good wood which has gotten to be quite popular here with these three mills. A pail factory makes the pails for those inclined to rush the growler. A large tannery, a flour mill, machine shops, two railroad machine shops, three large public school buildings, a $60,000 Y. M. C. A. building, donated by Mrs. Elkins; a $200,000 court house, two wholesale grocery houses, State Odd Fellows' Home, a credit to the order anywhere and just finished, are to be found here. The city is dry yet I see a drunk on the street. All in all Elkins is a pretty city, healthy as well as beautiful.

We have a number of Bedford people here. Jim Charleston came here eighteen years ago and has taken The Gazette all the time. He has acquired a property on River Street, and lives in as neat a cottage as one might wish to own. Jim's wife is a helpmeet for him in every way and makes him go to church very regularly. His daughter, now 16, is head clerk in Wilson's store. Then we have Watson Stiffler, the same whom Dr. Hickok named Satsie, and his wife, both are well and getting on nicely. Then we have Max Brightbill, the machinist, and a good one he is. Shannon Desbaugh and family are here and quite well. Shannon is a son of "Uncle Dan" Desbaugh, formerly of the Willows.

A few days ago I met James Gilchrist at Marietta, O. He is well and has lately been promoted, or appointed one of the staff of the commanding officer, with rank as Colonel, by Charles H. Newton, who is commander of the department of G. A. R. of Ohio. Good for Jim! I know all will be pleased to hear of his appointment as he is justly deserving of the honor. His wife has moved her ladies' tailoring parlors to Main Street, where she employs a number of assistants, and from the way the half dozen sewing machines were humming trade is good.

Each time I come out here into the oil and gas fields I get more and more inquisitive about the "modus operandi," etc. A few days ago at Pennsboro I learned that there were six wells nearby that were producing each twenty-four hours sixty million feet of gas; big but true. This is sold to the Standard Oil Company at 2½ cents per thousand feet. The Standard has pipes to the wells where the connection is made and the gas goes to Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland and other cities, where the Standard sells it to the consumers at twenty-two cents per 1,000 feet. For each well the Standard must pay the land owner $200,000 a year. This is not enough, and it is one of the ways the oil company robs the poor farmer.

The weather since I left Bedford has been ideal. One day last week it was cold and windy and snow blew, but the next was fine and so it has been ever since. Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

Baffled.

Two brothers were once at Count von Moltke's house at an evening party. Both were captains of the general staff. The general came up to a group of gentlemen, one of whom was one of the brothers. After joining in the conversation he said to the latter: "Just tell me who is that tall officer near the fireplace on the other side. I forget his name."

"That's my brother, your excellency," was the answer.

A smile stealing over the general's face suggested the idea that he had not obtained the information he wished. Some time after the general went to another group of people and there joined the officer whose name he had inquired. Suddenly the others saw him turning away, with the same smile on his face.

Afterward, when they inquired from the young officer what the general had asked him, he replied: "He asked me who that officer was over there."

"And what did you say?"
"I said that he was my brother?"
The general gave up inquiring the name of the two brothers for that evening.

AT CIRCUIT COURT

T. P. Beckley Meets Old Friends
While in Smoky City.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 20, 1909.
Dear Gazette—I have now spent two weeks in the Smoky City serving, as best I can, as a petit juror in the United States Circuit Court, presided over by His Honor, Judge Orr; and in the District Court Room by His Honor, Judge Young. To me, the means employed to mete out justice is a tedious grind that is, possibly, unavoidable.

After my experience and observation here I am deeply impressed with the importance of having the names of the best men in the country placed in the wheel—men who are mentally and physically strong; men who will not shrink nor shrink from the performance of a duty, however it may be of a civic character; men who are conscientious, too, and will not get sick merely as an excuse to go home. On this line I might be allowed to suggest that special care should be exercised when the names of men of three-score and more years are being considered for jury duty, particularly in these courts. As a rule I believe it is a mistake and really unkind to require such service of them, and, an imposition on the government to cause it to pay for a service that the servant is unwilling or unable to perform.

It would seem also that all jurors should be smokers, or that none should be smokers; for one who has not any of the poison of tobacco in his system it is very unpleasant and nauseating to sit in a jury room, closeted there for hours, and days, and nights, maybe, dark with the smoke of burning cigars, pipes and cigarettes. It is to be hoped that the mere mention of such a condition will not suggest to the smoker's mind, the thought of an abridgment, or an interference with his "personal liberties"—such is not the intent. But, the question does arise in my mind—Is it right to force me to endure such conditions? Have I no redress? Did not, and does not nature furnish us all with pure, uncontaminated air to breathe, and shall man poison it for his fellowman to inhale when he is powerless?

My stay here, although it is somewhat confining, has had its compensating features. I have met many friends and acquaintances of former years. Among others I was pleased to meet John H. Jordan, U. S. District Attorney. He still wears his genial smile, spreading clear across his rotund face, but behind it lurks a frown that is ominous to offenders against the government. W. M. Hall, too, is here, and is a success. His very presence adds to the dignity of the court. I did not see a busier man nor grasp a warmer hand than that of John S. Weller, lately State Senator. I did not, however, feel like apologizing for my bald head! I met John Wy Boor frequently, and he has helped to make it pleasant for me.

By invitation I had the pleasure, as well as the honor of lunching on last Monday with Norman Hench, a prince of good fellows. He is in the employ of the Carnegie Steel Company at a salary of a thousand dollars a year, multiplied by three, and then some. His company's estimate of his ability and worth will grow. R. P. Wright came to see me the other day and I had a pleasant hour with him in the corridor of the Federal Court Building. He still retains his vigorous and youthful appearance and is glad he has succeeded. I would like to speak of a score or two more, many of them the friends of my youth, but must not now.

Just this morning I heard with sorrow of the death of my friend, Jim Corboy. He had many friends here, former visitors to Bedford Springs, who have inquired of your humble servant concerning him, notably the Marshall Brothers, sons of the late Tom Marshall, who visited Bedford frequently with their father.

I have no knowledge of how soon I may be discharged but hope it won't be long. Very truly, ing expedition of a week or ten days. Edward Fisher is employed in the cigar factory.
Thos. P. Beckley.

Last Monday George Smith killed two hogs that tipped the beam at 200 pounds each. W. E. Souser also slaughtered a fine specimen but we did not learn the weight.

James P. Colfelt has a force of men placing some very large stone below the breast of the dam, this being done for the purpose of protecting the dam against heavy ice and high water.

E. E. Fickes of Moxham spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Daniel Mock. He was accompanied home by his wife and son Walter.

The real estate of Joseph Ickes' heirs was sold on Saturday. Raymond Ickes purchased the mansion tract for $655 and Dr. J. W. Lindsey, the lots in the Imler Extension, for $217.

Charles R. Imler and Cyrus Fickes each took a load of meat to Johnstown on Monday.

Quite a number of our people have butchered and a number of large pigs slaughtered so far. David Bloom has killed the heaviest weighing respectively 314 and 360 pounds.

Jacob Weyant has returned after a week's visit with his daughter, Mrs. Annie Saylor, at Meyersdale.

Misses Lillie and Carrie Imler spent Wednesday in Bedford.

William Hall of Altoona lost a valuable hunting dog Saturday evening while out hunting coon.

Referred Question: Will Bedford County go dry? Or can the rulings of our Judges be set aside by the Judges of the Supreme Court?

The teachers of King Township recently organized an Educational Meeting to be held semi-monthly, first meeting at Imler Friday, December 10, at 7:30 p. m.

There will be no preaching service, or Sunday School here next Sunday as both ministers and the choir of this place will go to the dedication of the new church at King.

William P. Griffith is superintending the cutting of several hundred telephone poles for the B. & H. R. R. They are being taken from the land of D. F. Bittinger.

Some evil minded person or persons stole a beast strap and traces off a horse driven to this place Friday evening to Literary by Fred Stambaugh of Osterburg. Such doings are very much against the society, which has made an excellent beginning for the winter, due to the hearty co-operation of the teachers, Misses Oyler and Kaufman, and their pupils.

We think an application of wood alcohol would be a very good medicine for such miscreants. Adam H. Imler lost a large hog on Monday. The hog was very fat and it seems the warm weather caused its death.

John Bittinger is hauling telephone poles to Imler at present.

Elr Reihner and son and Ambrose Callahan, of Ryot, are busy framing M. J. Imler's barn.

Miss Lillie Weyant spent Tuesday in Bedford.

Dr. Smith took a splinter from the wound last week about an inch long and thick as a lead pencil, which kept the wound from healing.

One of our young ladies of Point went to Bedford on Saturday and when she returned in the evening her name had been changed from Miss Nellie Griffith to Mrs. Bert Blattenberger. Mr. Blattenberger is a son of Fred Blattenberger of Pishelton and is employed at Roaring Spring. RECIPES

Chocolate Creams

Use confectioner's chocolate for these. Melt it. Take good stiff fondant, flavor it as desired, form it into balls, and drop them into the melted chocolate. If liked, chopped nuts, dates, etc., can be mixed with the fondant, and make a pleasant change.

Concord Cream Mints

Put into a porcelain lined saucepan two cups of sugar and a half cup of water. After it commences boiling cook exactly eight minutes. Take from the fire, add eight drops peppermint essence, stir hard and drop from the end of a spoon on to waxed paper.

California Drops

One cup sugar, 1 1/2 tablespoons lard, one egg, one cup molasses, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup dried currants and flour enough for a thin batter. Drop on buttered tins.

Candied Figs

Cut a few figs in strips an inch wide and roll these in fondant. When nearly hard cut them in pieces with a sharp knife.

Date Candy

Roll some balls of fondant. Stone some good-sized dates, cut them in halves, press one-half up against each side of the ball of fondant. Walnuts may be done in the same way.

Peanut Cookies

Beat one-fourth of a cupful of butter to a cream; beat in half a cupful of sugar, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of milk and one cupful of flour, sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Add, at the last, three-fourths of a cupful of peanuts pounded fine in a mortar. Drop by the teaspoonful upon a buttered tin, put half a nut meat on each. Bake in a moderate oven.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

When frying mush dip the slices first in the white of an egg. This makes it crisp.

After washing the lamp chimney polish it with dry salt. It makes the glass bright and will prevent its breaking.

A vanilla bean kept in the sugar box will impart a delicious flavor to the sugar. This is a bit of advice from a French chef.

Salt thrown into the oven immediately after anything has been burned in it will make the objectionable odor less disagreeable.

Grind a handful of sunflower seeds and give them to the canary. The birds relish the little tender pieces that are found among the seeds.

When running dates, figs or raisins through the food chopper, add a few drops of lemon juice. It will do much toward preventing the fruit from clogging the chopper.

If the loaves of bread are a little too light and in danger of running over cut strips of heavy brown paper three or four inches wide, grease one side and pin around the loaf, being careful that it does not touch the side of the oven.

If the floors of a closet are wiped off with gasoline or benzine after being scrubbed it helps to keep off insects.

Flyspecks and dirt on mirror surfaces may be rubbed off with a cream made of whiting and alcohol.

A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR PIMPLES

To remove Pimples, Blackheads, Blisters and all forms of skin eruptions, is, according to a well known physician, a very easy matter; he says that many are afflicted with some one of the above ailments, and are subject to a great deal of embarrassment on account of the unsightly appearance which they present, and recommends the following simple, harmless and inexpensive treatment. Go to your Druggist and get this prescription filled: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces, mix, shake well and apply to the parts affected night and morning, allowing it to remain on the skin at least ten minutes, then wipe off the powder from the skin. Use a soft cloth or sponge in applying the mixture and in from ten days to two weeks your face will be smooth and clear as a marriage bell. Get the Pure Clearola, which is only put up in half-ounce packages. Ask to see it.

Be Cheerful

Cheer up, friend. If the day looks dark to you, light your lamp of hope. Some of us manage to have a sunny tone, even when there are indications of a total eclipse. Is it wise to waste a day?

I observed a locomotive in the railroad yards one day, It was waiting in the roundhouse, where the locomotives stay; It was panting for the journey, it was coaled and fully manned, And it had a box the fireman was filling full of SAND.

It appears that locomotives cannot always get a grip On their slender iron pavement, 'cause the wheels are apt to slip, And when they reach a slippery spot their tactics they command And to get a grip upon the rail they sprinkle it with SAND.

If your track is steep and hilly, and you have a heavy grade, And if those who've gone before you have the rails quite slippery made: If you ever reach the summit of the upper tableland, You'll find you'll have to do it with a liberal use of SAND.

If you strike some frigid weather and discover to your cost That you're liable to slip on a heavy coat of frost, Then some prompt, decided action will be called into demand, And you'll slide clear to the bottom if you haven't any SAND.

You can get to any station that is on life's scheduled train, If there's fire beneath the boiler of ambition's strong machine, And you'll reach a place called Rich-town at a rate of speed that's grand, If for all the slippery places you've a good supply of SAND.

Too Much Married

Bishop Spaulding of the Episcopal Church resides in Salt Lake City. He comes in contact with the Mormons. There is a federal law against polygamy, but the Bishop says there is a lack of adequate state laws to prevent polygamous marriage. And he says there will always be such a lack, as long as the state of Utah has woman's suffrage. He declares the women are more in favor of polygamy than the men, and that the belief in polygamy is gaining recruits among the women, while the men are not so much interested.

"In the City Churches"

In announcing the Sunday services in the New York churches all churches seem to look alike to the New York papers. At least in a column headed "In the City Churches," and mixed in with Presbyterian, Methodist, Reformed, Episcopal and other orthodox churches, the following church notices appear: New church, Sunday morning subject, "Are We Mystics?" Theosophical Society, subject, "Physic Researches of Science." Vedanta Philosophy, subject, "Budda and His Teachings." Independent Liberal Congregation, subject, "Some Results of the Election." Ethical Culture Society, subject, "Woman Suffrage Question: An Ethical Point of View."

Itching, bleeding, protruding or blind piles yield to Doan's Ointment. Chronic cases soon relieved, finally cured. Druggists all sell it.

Boosts and Knocks

How comes it that the evil which men say spreads so widely and lasts so long, whilst our good, kind words don't seem somehow to take root and bear blossom? Is it that in the stony hearts of mankind these pretty flowers can't find a place to grow? Certain it is that scandal is good, brisk talk, whereas praise of one's neighbor is by no means lively hearing. —W. M. Thackeray.

When a man talks a great deal about his stomach, it is a sign he is becoming old. Elbert Hubbard says: "It is quite as necessary that you should eat good food, as that you should read good books, hear good music, hear good sermons, or look upon beautiful pictures. The necessary is the sacred. There are no menial tasks."

Wanted to Take.

Mrs. B. believed in infant baptism, but for some reason that rite was not performed for Tommy till he was some four or five years old. While the ceremony was in progress the mother was very much gratified with Tommy's behavior. He seemed duly impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and remained with bowed head for some time after the sprinkling had been done.

"The angel!" exclaimed the mother. "The little dear!" said a good sister as she went up to give him a "God bless you" and a pat on the head. But just as her hand was descending with that benediction a very wrathful and unangelic countenance was turned upon her, a pugilistic little fist delivered a paralyzing blow on her biceps, and the indignant Tommy exclaimed, "You git away from here!"

Of course he was led out in disgrace and questioned by his horrified mother. "Why, don't you know she would 'a rubbed all the baptizing water off before it would 'a had time to soak in?" explained Tommy, who from his point of view was fully justified. —Los Angeles Times.

Buffoonery in "Hamlet."

The buffoonery once tolerated in provincial theaters is illustrated in an anecdote set forth in the memoirs of Barry Sullivan. Wright, who was the first gravedigger, prepared himself to take the house by storm by having incased his person within a dozen or more waistcoats of all sorts of shapes and patterns. When about to commence the operation of digging the grave for the fair Ophelia Wright began to unwind by taking off waistcoat after waistcoat, which caused uproarious laughter among the audience. But as fast as he relieved himself of one waistcoat Paul Bedford, the second gravedigger, incased himself in the castoff vests, which increased the salvoes of laughter, for as Wright was getting thinner Paul grew fatter and fatter. Wright, seeing himself outdone, kept on the remainder of the waistcoats and went on with his part quite crestfallen.

An Awkward Selection.

The first Baron Keeney was rather fond of telling the story of how while on circuit with Justice Rook they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be, or must not innocence appeal to heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed, your gripping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed." By this time most of the adults had woken up to the application of the psalm and remained silent, allowing the children to continue the second verse. —London Tatler.

A Soft Answer.

Jewel—Arrah, Jimmy, why did I marry ye? Just tell me that, for it's meself that's had to maintain ye ever since the blessed day that I became your wife.

"Swate jewel," replied Jimmy, not relishing the charge, "and it's meself that hopes I may live to see the day when you're a widow weeping over the cold sod that covers me. Then I'll see how you'll get along without me, honey." —London Tit-Bits.

Lesson IX.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 28, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Rom. xiv, 10-21. Memory Verses, 19, 20—Golden Text, Rom. xiv, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Bishop Moule speaks of this section of this epistle from chapter xii onward as "present duties in the power of eternal facts." Some of the facts are the sin that is in man, the redemption that is in Christ Jesus for sinful man, the "no condemnation" and "no separation" of chapter viii as a result of that great redemption and the far-reaching, glorious prospect for the whole creation with Israel as a righteous center bringing true riches to all nations. The effect of this upon the mind of the believer should be such a renewal that henceforth he is done with this present evil age and done with himself and determined to live wholly in the perfect will of God, as a new creature in Christ, old things passed away, all things become new (Rom. xii, 1, 2; I Cor. v, 17). Even Christ pleased not himself, and in the epistles we are taught how we ought to walk and to please God and to let every one of us please his neighbor for his good to edification (xv, 1-3).

Now, it seems to me that the great point in our lesson is that each one should for himself get right in this matter and not mispend his time in seeking to get others right while he himself is all wrong. "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (verse 12). Therefore why judge our brother in any matter, and especially in eating and drinking, since all believers must stand before the judgment seat of God, or of Christ, for Christ is God? (Verse 10.) If we have received the Lord Jesus, then we are in Christ and are looked upon as having died with Him and risen with Him, so that our judgment for sin is past on Calvary, and we have His assurance that our sins and iniquities He will remember no more.

It is possible as His redeemed ones to walk in the light under the shelter of His precious blood and have conscious and unbroken fellowship with Him as we yield ourselves to Him moment by moment to walk in the good works He has beforehand prepared for us and to live the life of utter self renunciation which He desires us to live to His glory, making it our ambition in all things to be acceptable to Him (Eph. ii, 10; I Cor. iv, 10, 11; v, 9). Although our Lord said to His disciples at the last Passover, "I appoint unto you a kingdom, as My Father hath appointed unto Me, that ye may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel" (Luke xxi, 29, 30), yet "the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost" (verse 17), and the chief object of our thoughts here should not be what shall we eat and drink and wear, but how can we best make manifest and make known His righteousness, which He offers freely to all, and thus hasten His kingdom of peace on earth. We should think of every one on earth as "one for whom Christ died" (verse 15) and trust Him to use us to bring as many as possible to Him, that they might obtain and enjoy His righteousness and peace and then bring others to the same. When the kingdom comes and a King shall reign in righteousness, then on all the earth the work of righteousness shall be peace and the service of righteousness shall be quietness and assurance forever (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17). There can be no peace to an individual or to a nation or to nations apart from righteousness, and there is no righteousness worthy of the name except that which God has provided in Christ, the righteous one; but, believing in Him, we are thus justified and have peace with God and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

Through the comfort of the Scriptures we wait patiently for the hope, and the God of patience and comfort gives us the mind of Christ toward others, while the God of hope fills us with joy and peace in believing, making us to abound in hope through the power of the Holy Spirit, and the God of peace is with us and gives us peace always by all means (Rom. v, 1, 2; xv, 4, 5, 13, 33; I Thess. iii, 16). If it is thus with us the minor matters of eating and drinking will keep their right place and we will never be found insisting that we may eat this and drink that, no matter what others may say; but, being filled with thoughts of His kingdom and glory, we will live for the salvation and edification of others rather than for our own gratification. As believers our self life was crucified with Christ, and now we are to reckon that old life as dead and buried and live a new life wholly unto God (Rom. vi, 6-11), not in anyway tolerating anything for which our hearts would condemn us (verses 22, 23; I John iii, 21).

All that God works in us to will and to do of His good pleasure will be approved, but all that is of or for self or to please men will prove to be wood, hay and stubble to be burned up (I Cor. iii, 11-15). This judgment seat of our lesson is for believers only, that they may be judged for their works and have their places assigned them in the kingdom, and must not be confounded with the judgment of Matt. xxv or the great white throne of Rev. xxi.

Home Course In Live Stock Farming

III.—Live Stock Farming and Soil Fertility.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course In Modern Agriculture," "Making Money on the Farm," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

WHEREVER grain is grown continuously for a number of years the soil decreases in yielding power. If the practice is kept up the yields will finally become so low as to be unprofitable, and the land is said to be worn out. The fact is it is not worn out any more than a sickle is worn out when it becomes too dull to cut. Both the sickle and the soil need a certain amount of treatment before they are in shape to use again.

In the case of the soil nature will restore it to its original productivity

FIG. 9.—HOW FERTILITY IS WASTED.

If given time. Crops of weeds will spring up, make a considerable growth and die down and rot. In the course of a few years the humus supply will be renewed, locked up elements of fertility will become available, and the field will again produce profitable crops.

If rotation is practiced so as to even up the demands on the soil, with clover or some other legume to gather nitrogen from the air, the soil will continue productive for a much longer time. Even then it will not keep on yielding profitable crops always. Commercial fertilizers may help to stave off the day of reckoning, but after the farmer has contributed hundreds of dollars to the pockets of the fertilizer manufacturer, he will find that even this method of maintaining fertility cannot be depended upon.

Keeping the Soil Productive.

There are three factors on which the productivity of the soil primarily depends—the amount of available mineral plant food elements which it contains, its physical condition and the amount of moisture it will hold. Nitrogen, one of the three most important chemical elements in the soil, can be obtained from the air in unlimited quantities by the use of legumes, such as clover and alfalfa. The other two, phosphorus and potassium, are present in most soils in fairly large quantities, although much of the supply is in unavailable form. Good tillage and well planned rotations do much to make these elements available. When the total supply becomes low it can be renewed by the application of fertilizers. This is all, however, that fertilizers will do. They will not improve the physical condition of the soil nor increase its moisture holding capacity.

The use of liberal amounts of clover in the rotation will add to the humus supply of the soil and so increase its moisture holding capacity. Humus acts like a sponge, forming a storehouse for water that would otherwise be wasted. Humus also improves the physical condition of the soil, making it lighter and mellow. Take a panful of clay and a panful of rich black surface soil, wet them thoroughly and place them in the sun. When the clay is dry it will be baked almost as hard as a brick, while a little stirring will make the black dirt as mellow as ever. This difference in the two soils is due solely to humus.

The humus supply cannot be maintained by the use of clover unless a crop is plowed under at frequent intervals. It takes considerable time for this clover to rot enough to form humus, and the turning under of so large an amount of green matter at once is liable to make the land "sour." This condition can be corrected by the use of lime, but this means trouble and expense.

The Value of Manure.

The only way to keep the soil in the highest possible state of productivity is to keep live stock and apply the manure to the land. Barnyard manure adds large amounts of the elements of fertility to the soil. An average of 80 per cent of the nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in the food eaten is passed out in the manure. This percentage is highest in fattening animals and lowest in young stock. The elements of fertility removed when grain is sold as compared with those removed by live stock are strikingly shown in the following table. The prices of the elements are figured at the approximate rate that would have to be paid if they were purchased in the form of commercial fertilizers. The approximate yield of one acre is given in each case:

Kind of crop.	Value of the nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium contained.
Corn—
Grain, 75 bushels.....	$13.62
Stover, two tons.....	8.28
Total.....	$21.90
Oats—
Grain, 50 bushels.....	$4.42
Straw, 1½ tons.....	4.96
Total.....	$9.38
Wheat—
Grain, 25 bushels.....	$5.15
Straw, 1 ton.....	2.68
Total.....	$7.83
Timothy, 2 tons.....	$10.74
Potatoes, 300 bushels.....	16.41
Fat cattle, 1,000 pounds.....	4.85
Fat hogs, 1,000 pounds.....	3.12
Milk, 10,000 pounds.....	10.11
Butter, 500 pounds.....	18

This table shows at a glance the great economy, considered from a fertility standpoint, of marketing grain in the form of live stock. Adding fertilizing materials to the soil, however, is only one of the ways in which manure is beneficial. It helps to break down the unavailable minerals. It adds humus, and this is of a kind that mixes readily with the soil. Thus the physical condition and water holding capacity of the soil are improved even more than where clover is used. Instead of plowing under clover it can be fed. The resulting manure will do the soil almost as much good as the clover would if turned under. Thus both the feeding and fertilizing value are obtained from it. By using a regular rotation with clover and feeding at the rough feed and most of the grain on the farm the soil can be brought up to a very high state of productivity and kept there for an indefinite period of time.

In an experiment at the Ohio experiment station where manure was applied every three years to a rotation of corn, wheat and clover at the rate of eight tons to the acre the average increase in yield was 14.7 bushels of corn, 8.36 bushels of wheat and 636 pounds of clover. The value of the increased yields due to the eight tons of manure was $17.32, or $2.17 per ton for the manure. This was for manure that was obtained in the open yard. Manure that had been tramped down in sheds where it was under shelter had a value of $2.95 per ton in increased crop yields.

The results obtained on a little run-down farm in Pennsylvania strikingly show what can be done with manure. This farm was so badly exhausted that it would produce scarcely anything. Dairying was introduced and the manure applied to the land. After a few years of such treatment and without the addition of any commercial fertilizers whatever the produc-

A Good Rule

To rise from the table able to eat a little more is a good rule for every one. There is nothing more idiotic than forcing down a few mouthfuls because they happen to remain on one's plate after hunger is satisfied, and because they may be wasted, to overtax the stomach with even half an ounce more than it can take care of.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

tivity of the farm was so greatly increased that an annual revenue of $200 to the acre was received from it.

The effect of manure continues for a great many years after its application. Experiments with manured and unmanured land have shown that the yield in the manured plots was considerably greater twenty years after the last application of manure was made.

Applying Manure.

The best results are obtained, however, when manure is applied frequently and in comparatively small amounts. For the ordinary field crops an application of eight tons to the acre is sufficient at one time. To get the required amount on each acre and to get it applied evenly a spreader is a necessity. Manure spread evenly over the ground is much more effective than that thrown about in large chunks, as is usually done, with a pitchfork. Still worse is the practice of dropping the manure in piles, leaving it nearly all winter and then toward spring scattering it about with a fork. In addition to spreading the manure more evenly, the spreader saves work enough to warrant any one who has much stock in buying one.

The spreader should be kept in use practically the year round. Manure left in the open yard for six months loses nearly half its fertilizing value. Manure kept in sheds does not lose in value nearly so rapidly. A practice that is sometimes followed on dairy farms is to have a shed in connection with the barn, keeping the cows in this shed most of the time, turning them into the barn only long enough to be milked. A plan that is preferable to this is to have a small shed over the door where the manure is thrown out. The spreader can be backed into this shed and the manure loaded directly on to it at seasons of the year when manure can be spread directly upon the fields. At other times the manure can be thrown out into the shed and left there until it can be hauled.

When you have a cold the first thing to do is have the bowels move. Do not take anything that may constipate—and most old fashioned cough cures do constipate. Try Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It drives the cold from the system by a free yet gentle action of the bowels; it stops the cough, it is pleasant to take. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

GRANGERS TAKE ACTION

Suggest Means for Congressman Reynolds to Set Himself Right.
Bedford Grange Hall,
November 17, 1909.

To the Hon. John M. Reynolds, M. C.
Dear Sir:—The session of Congress now coming is going to be one of exceptional importance to all of our constituents, and especially to those of us engaged in agricultural pursuits or other rural employments.

We give you great credit for the wonderful energy and ability displayed and used in completely covering your district with the farmers' greatest convenience, namely the Rural Free Delivery of U. S. mail; for the Geodetic Survey, for securing appropriations for Johnstown's federal building, for the prompt manner of handling all pension matters before the department and for the gentlemanly manner and promptness with which you answer any communication we may address to you.

But as time goes on we still demand more work. The work of the Congress this coming session will be watched closely by the people. We understand from the great daily papers that Hon. Joseph Cannon has said or intimated that there will be no "parcels post" nor "postal bank" legislation.

We do not believe in a one-man Congress nor in one man shaping legislation or appointing committees to bury any bills he does not favor. We believe that "Cannonism" should die now, at once, and other rules should be adopted taking the arbitrary power from the speaker, and making his office a presiding office, not a legislation-shaping power.

We believe in the success of a Parcels Post, a General Parcels Post. If it is a success in foreign countries it will be a success here. Eleven pounds of mail matter (not first class) for 25 cents, according to the Post Master General would soon wipe out the deficit and put the Post Office Department on a paying basis. The dividends paid by the great express companies are evidence enough to satisfy the mind of any ordinary business man of the success of such a law. It is now time for the express companies to stand aside and let the people have the right of representation in such matters.

The Philadelphia North American has quoted you as being "absolutely colorless," and now we, here in your district, expect you to refute this charge during this session. We will not feel satisfied to have the great 19th Congressional District of Pennsylvania remain "absolutely colorless" in matters of national importance.

In connection herewith we believe this charge can be refuted by you, as Representative from this district, taking a decided and aggressive stand against the proposed change in the oleomargarine law, to give dealers more chance to sell the same as butter; by encouraging on the floor of the House a law giving the Interstate Commerce Commission greater powers; by action strong enough to command the attention of the country in favor of a General Parcels Post, and Postal Savings Bank; by opposing any Ship Subsidy Bill; by opposing the present rulings and methods of appointing the committees.

By applying as vigorous action to these measures as you use in the political campaigns, our district will not be referred to as an "absolutely colorless" district.

We await with great anticipation the coming session of Congress, for we believe the future actions and influence of the Grange will depend, to a great extent, on this session of Congress.

We remain, sincerely yours,

S. U. Troutman, Master.

Geo. W. Koontz, Secretary.
